And may it be a Thanksgiving season, indeed.

President Roosevelt is not a man to run in a rut or groove, yet he will re-appoint practically all, if not all, the members of his cabinet.

It will not be "a horse" on the city; it will be four horses on the city when the city council purchases that extra team for the fire department.

It is a novel method of detecting a criminal that the Chicago police used the other day when they propped up the murdered man's body and raised the arm so that the gaunt finger should point directly at the person who was brought into the room. Yet the method might prove fallible. A suspect, entirely innocent of the crime, might show signs of terror and display other emotions which would apparently incriminate him; while, on the other hand, the real murderer, steeped and hardened in crime, might face the corpse and the accusing finger in stolid indifference. This is true, too, in spite of the generally accepted idea that the murderer cringes when brought to look upon his victim. For absolute certainty of evidence the Chicago method does not commend itself.

So far as that goes, The Messenger very much doubts whether the true spirit of our institutions contemplates exact compensation for the occasional attendance of the citizen upon the courts of Justice. There are, or there should be, some acts of public service required of the citizen as an earnest of his citizenship. The man owes something of his time and the fruits of his experience to the state. We are rushing toward the all-absorbing materialistic view of life in this country all too fast as it is. —St. Albans Messenger.

From the standpoint of sentiment, the contemporary's idea is most excellent and is clothed in most admirable sentences; yet to come down to the plain, every-day, practical view of the situation, it is an entirely different matter. To be patriotic does not denote that one must leave his business to appear as a witness in a small justice trial, receiving in compensation therefore the sum of fifty cents. To be loyal to the institutions of one's country does not mean that one must sacrifice time and money just because he is called to testify in the little petty squabbles that some of his countrymen engage in. Still, when called, one must testify. Let there be a fair recompense.

A WORK WELL DONE.

It has taken a long time, but the work of equipping the city hall and Barre opera house with fire escapes has finally been completed. The people of the city and particularly those who are in the habit of attending public meetings, theatres, concerts, lectures, etc., in the opera house will breathe easier. The building may now be considered well equipped with the means of getting out in case of a fire or panic occasioned by other causes. There are three staircase exits, all of which are open and easily reached. The doors of these are always kept unlocked. Two of these exits, those beneath the stage, could not be depended upon to allow a very large number of people to pass out in the crush that would follow a fire scare, but the main exit is plenty large enough. These exits have now been supplemented with two ladder fire escapes, one on the south and the other on the north side. With these the building is the best equipped of any in the city for the protection of life in case of extreme necessity, such as may come, but which all hope will never come. On thing more is necessary, and that is to follow out the recommendation of the inspector of buildings and plainly mark the exits and the approaches to the fire escapes. We are promised by those in charge that there will be no delay in taking this added precaution. With that done the work will be well done.

CURRENT COMMENT.

What the Press of the State and Country Is Talking About.

"John H. Senter of Montpelier, Democrat, told the temperance committee some plain facts about the present liquor law. Some Republican ought to have said the same thing. Why didn't he?"—Ludlow Tribune.

For Friendly Revision.

The function of the Republican party during the next four years will be to ease the social pressure of radicalism by letting off the steam gradually.

If the safety valve is held down too tight some day a big outburst will blow Bryan, Hearst, Watson, Debs, etc., into office.

The way to avoid this is to do something about the tariff and to do something about the trusts.

Another reason for doing something about the tariff and for doing something about the trusts is that it is right that something should be done.

Men like Bryan, Hearst, Watson and Debs are not the men to do it.

Evidently Bryan is impractical. If he tried all his remedies on the country at once he would make it a good deal sicker than it is now. Roosevelt and his advisers are practical. They have a faculty for government. They have technical skill in legislation and administration. They are men of affairs. They are efficient.

It is better for the country that they should do something about the tariff than that Bryan should do it. It is better for the country that they should do something about the trusts than that Hearst should do it.

Something must be done. Massachusetts has carried an election for reciprocity. Parker was ruined by his connection with the trusts. There is a feeling all over the country that the rigor of the tariff must be mitigated and that the control of the Federal Government over the trusts must be enlarged.

This feeling co-exists with an equally strong feeling that the principle of protection must not be abandoned and that there must be no horse, foot and dragon attack on capital.

In other words, the country wants conservative progress. It does not want the political drag store which Bryan offers it. It wants just one or two things, and it wants those things properly done.

Roosevelt is the man to do them in a statesmanlike way. If he can get Congress to assist him he will let off enough steam to leave the country plenty of power in the boiler and not too much. —Chicago Tribune.

EAST BARRE.

A Thanksgiving service will be held in the Congregational church Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. The Wednesday evening meeting will be omitted for this week. A good attendance at this service is urged as an expression of thankfulness to God for his goodness toward us as a people during the year. Our worthy governor's most excellent proclamation should be heeded in all respects, not omitting the last part: "On that day in the spirit of a broader charity, let us bring good cheer to those less fortunate than ourselves; around the festive board and glowing hearthstone, let us bind closer the ties of kindred and friendship, and in our accustomed places of worship and at the family altar, let us render thanks to God for his abundant blessings to us as individuals, as a state, and as a nation, at peace with ourselves and the world."
